The Australian bishops have issued a statement of principles on the use of Inclusive language in the liturgy. This is very welcome indeed. It is essential, they write, that our language be inclusive because our words should

- "demonstrate respect for the dignity of each person as a child of God;
- "ensure that each person hears the texts as being addressed to them;
- "facilitate the full, conscious and active participation of all those gathered."

The translation of the bible which we use for our readings is the Jerusalem Bible which was published in 1966. Several more accurate translations have come out since. The bishops have approved two new translations to supplement the 1966 translation. They are the Revised New Jerusalem Bible and the New Revised Standard Version. So what will this mean? You may notice that what you hear at Mass may be different from the text in your Missal, e.g. they ask us to "substitute exclusive terms with appropriate inclusive expressions when proclaiming the readings from the Lectionary. For example, replace 'brothers' with 'brothers and sisters' or 'friends' when it is used in the letters of St Paul to address the listeners. When referring to all people, replace 'men' or 'mankind' with 'humanity', 'humankind', 'others' or 'people'." Priests are asked to look at the readings beforehand and use an alternative reading when the current lectionary uses exclusive language. The readings themselves have not changed just the translation from the original Hebrew and Greek. May it encourage all of us to listen attentively to what God is saying to us through his Word.

താഴ്ന്ന നിലയിലെ ശൗചാലയങ്ങളും കത്തീഡ്രലിന്റെ മിക്ക ഭാഗങ്ങളും പൊതുജനങ്ങൾക്ക് തുറന്നിട്ടുണ്ടെന്ന ഓർമ്മപ്പെടുത്തൽ. കുട്ടികളെയും അപകടസാധ്യതയുള്ള മറ്റുള്ളവരെയും എല്ലാ സമയത്തും കൂടെയുണ്ടാകണമെന്ന് ഉറപ്പാക്കുക.

Taking young children to church can be stressful for parents, but children are members of the church and can and should participate in the liturgy. So when you see parents with children, give them a friendly smile and make them feel welcome. Tell them what a good job they are doing and tell them you're glad they are with us at Mass. Do not add to their stress. Families, children, babies are always welcome in our Cathedral.
